MA-ME-O BEACH IS A POPULAR SUMMER RESORT

A large number of Wetaskiwin families motored to Ma-Me-O Beach on Sunday last, and those who had not seen the lake this spring, were greatly surprised to see the building boom which is in progress. Upwards of thirty new cottages have been recently built, or are in process of construction, and it is understood that all the water front lots have been disposed of. The cottages are quite modern, with fire places and are of a much better type than the lodges that were built some years ago. Good progress is being made on the construction of the large new dance hall, and this will be in readiness by the opening of the camping season. Charles Woods is erecting a large new store, and he will conduct the Post Office as well. A new subdivision known as Silver Bay, on the southwestern part of the lake, has been placed on the market and we understand over thirty lots have been sold and several cottages are being erected. The road from Wetaskiwin to the lake is in first class condition with the exception of two or three miles near the lake, but as the contractors are busily engaged in hauling gravel it is expected that the highway will be in good condition by the end of June. Pigeon Lake is one of the most beautiful lakes in the Province, and now that it is easily accessible by a good gravelled road, Ma-Me-O Beach is destined to be one of the most popular summer resorts this season.

CHURCH OPPOSES WAR AND LIQUOR

Edmonton, May 30.—War and liquor were repudiated by the United Church conference of Alberta here on Monday morning.

Reaffirming the stand of the United Church that war is diametrically opposed to the spirit of Christ, the conference resolved that the church, as a church, should not take any part in any future war or give support to it. War resistance as an individual attitude was also approved.

Cadet training in public schools and the C.O.C.T. in the university were again condemned, on a motion from the floor of the house, the view being taken that such training, on a practically compulsory basis, is a direct feeder to the militaristic spirit.

On the temperance question the conference went on record as reaffirming also its position that the liquor traffic is a social evil and a menace to public welfare and decided to appoint a special committee to study the question.

George Beavo recently purchased a residence near the Old Fellows Hall, and he and family moved there effects last week to the new premises.

Ten Fateful Minutes

A Titanic Sidelight

Twenty years ago, at 11:40 on a quiet Sunday night, the Titanic racing for New York through the icefields of the North Atlantic was sliced open by a submerged ledge of ice for 300 feet below her water line and sank two hours and a half later with a loss of 1500 lives out of more than 2202 souls aboard. So slight was the shock of impact that little attention was at first paid by the officers to the incident. And by one of the grimmest ironies of Fate ever recorded in the history of the tragic dramas of the sea, the one man who might have prevented this fearful loss of human life lay innocently asleep in his berth on board the Californian, a 6,000-ton ship which lay hove-to in the ice-field only eight or ten miles distant from the Titanic.

This man was the sole wireless operator of the Californian, a young man named Evans, who had actually half an hour before tried to warn the Titanic of danger but had been curtly told not to interrupt. Evans, who had been on duty since seven in the morning, went to bed completely tired out, ten fateful minutes before the Titanic grazed the ice-field.

Late in the afternoon of April 12th, 1912, the Californian found herself in the vicinity of ice and sent out a general warning. It was picked up by the Titanic, which nevertheless continued to travel along at 21 knots in order to maintain her schedule time. At 10:30 the Californian stopped altogether because the ice-field extended across the western horizon ahead of her. At 11 o'clock she saw lights approaching her on the starboard quarter, but her officers did not identify the oncoming ship as the Titanic, because her lights were not such as would be expected from so huge a vessel, and the angle at which she was approaching also made her appear much smaller. Just then Evans, the Californian wireless man, got in touch with the Titanic, but by supreme luck no conversation between them took place, except an abrupt request from Phillips, the senior wireless operator of the Titanic, to Evans to keep out and refrain from "jamming" the communications he himself was then exchanging with Cape Race. Had Phillips only allowed Evans a minute or two of conversation he would have learned the exact location of the Californian and the ice conditions. Third Officer Groves was on watch on the bridge of the Californian and saw the strange ship ten or twelve miles off. He reported her to the Captain, who told him to call her up on the Morse lamp.

Groves could get no answer and at 11:40 the distant ship seemed to stop and her deck lights go out. Groves naturally assumed that the ship had, like the Californian, stepped on account of the ice and her passengers had gone to bed. The captain of the Californian who had come up on the bridge, knew from his wireless operator, that the Titanic was somewhere in the neighborhood, but as he did not associate the unidentified ship with the Titanic, indeed, he expressed some doubt that she was a passenger ship. Meanwhile Evans had gone to bed at 11:30 and there did not seem to be any urgent necessity to awaken the tired youth to make further enquiry. Shortly after midnight, Groves was relieved by Second Officer Stone to whom he pointed out the strange ship, but it never entered his head that she was the Titanic. Yet Groves was not quite easy in mind, and before he turned in to rest, he went to the cabin where Evans lay asleep and awakened him enough to ask him what ships he had been in touch with. "Only the Titanic," murmured the half-conscious youth who turned over and went to sleep again. Groves, unwilling to bother the wearied operator, did not press the matter further, though before he left Evans' cabin he actually put Evans' head on his own ears, heard nothing, put them down, and went to bed.

Up on the bridge of the Californian, Stone and an apprentice were on watch, and as their ship swung slowly to and fro, they observed the distant vessel — one masthead light a red sidelight and two or three indistinct lights on the deck. At ten minutes past one they noticed five white flashes at intervals of about three minutes, and Stone accordingly, reported them to the captain, who asked Stone if they were the company's signals. Stone did not recognize them as such but tried vainly to get into communication with the strange ship through the Morse signal lamp. None of them thought of awakening Evans from his peaceful slumbers because there did not seem to be any serious emergency; the only ship near them of which they were cognizant was the Titanic and the ship they were looking at certainly could not be the Titanic, because, first of all, she was apparently far too small, and secondly, because the Titanic was the much advertised "unsinkable" ship and would not be sending up distress rockets. At 1:40 three more rockets were seen and Second Officer Stone, who by this time was becoming uneasy, sent the apprentice to report to the captain. The lights of the strange ship were not normal and were moving queerly. Soon the lights began to disappear and the puzzled observers on the bridge of the Californian reached the conclusion that the ship was steaming away from them toward the south-west and at twenty-two the lights entirely disappeared. The Titanic had gone to the bottom of the Atlantic before these unimportant eyes.

It developed subsequently at the enquiry in Liverpool that whilst the officers of the Californian were trying to signal by Morse lamp to the Titanic, the officers of the doomed ship could also see very plainly the masthead lights and the red and green sidelights of the Californian and tried to signal her by Morse lamp also, but, for some unknown reason, neither ship could distinguish the lamp flashes of the other. Ten little minutes between the time that an exhausted wireless operator took off his "head-phones" to go to bed, and the moment the Titanic struck an iceberg—the curt order of Phillips to Evans to "keep out; don't interrupt me"; the vain effort of Groves to listen in through Evans' headphones; the failure of the Morse lamp signals to carry across the eight or ten miles between the two ships—was there ever a more cruel bit of jesting on the part of Fate?

ROMANCE OF DAILY NEWSPAPER

S. E. Thomason, publisher of the Chicago Illustrated Times, says: "Romantic is the simple act of reading a newspaper; only a short time ago this sheet of white paper was in another form of life. It was part of a spruce or balsam tree—lying its green arms in the white silence of a north country. The woodman was not dead, but new life to that tree. It meant that the tree was to become part of your life, that it was to bear the urgent news of the world to your doorstep. That tree was to know the big 'barking' drums that tear logs into shreds. It was to whirl along in the wide white wet, ribbon of paper in the paper-making machine; some day to hear the roar of newspaper presses in the heart of the newspaper building. Before this newspaper got into those presses it had felt the mottled heat of the stereotype chamber, the steam of the matrix table; it had scuttled through the slam-bang bustle of composing and engraving and editorial rooms. "The newspaper is the brain-child of a small army of news-hungry men and women who have in many cases suffered hardship and labored long that their reportings may be placed before you on this sheet of paper. "Be as unworried as a child for a moment—focus your eyes and powers beyond the surface of this newspaper. Picture in your mind the trees and the ships and the freight cars and the presses—vision the faces of newspaper men and women, etched sometimes with fatigue, ablaze with the fire of a purpose.

"Let your imagination be your companion as you read your newspaper and you'll never know boredom. Wouldn't life today be a dull business without the newspaper? It's thrilling business to both of us—to you in the reading, and to us in the publishing!"

ALBERTA FARMERS' BODY AGAINST QUOTA IN EMPIRE

Taking a stand against the establishment of a wheat quota within the Empire and suggesting that the gold standard might be abandoned throughout the Empire, or urging the alternative that parity between the Canadian dollar and the English pound sterling be established, the United Farmers of Alberta Sunday released a memorandum of its executive committee containing these representations.

The memorandum has been sent to other farm organizations with which the U.F.A. is in consultation and to the recent Regina conference. A copy has been sent to Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett for consideration in reference to the Imperial Economic Conference to be held in July.

The executive committee of the farm body has been in communication with a number of farm marketing bodies in Alberta and with farm bodies in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, though Norman F. Priestley, U. F. A. Vice-President. The U. F. A. was asked to attend the conference in Regina last week by the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, but being unable to send a delegate prepared a statement outlining its views. Copies of this memorandum have been sent to all provincial farm organizations in the west.

The U.F.A. points out that Western Canada depends for its livelihood upon agriculture, and that the fact that free access to world markets is essential must be remembered when the economic discussions take place.

Pointing out that only one-third of Canada's exportable wheat surplus is purchased within the Empire, the U.F.A. states that "nothing should be done which would place in jeopardy our access to non-Empire markets," and stating its opposition to a quota system, states that, "if a preferential tariff system is adopted, care should be taken to prevent 'the emergence of any spirit of antagonism which might prejudice the interests of the Canadian wheat producer in foreign markets.'—Albertan.

THE MAGNITUDE OF AGRICULTURE

Alonso Taylor of the Food Research Institute of California, recently said that there are approximately 1,800,000,000 people in the world and that, in a general way, it requires the labour of two out of every three to feed and clothe them all.

Put in another way, the production of food, so that the people of the world may live, calls for effort, either direct or indirect, on the part of two out of every three people inhabiting the globe—approximately a billion and a quarter.

Agriculture, therefore, becomes an industry and an activity of first importance in the scheme of modern life. And because this is so, the interest of all must, fundamentally, lie in the success or failure of those millions whose primary contribution to the welfare of the world is the cultivation of the soil.

GRASSHOPPERS IN ARGENTINA

Argentina is planning on the erection of a wire gauze fence 3 feet 9 inches in height along its northern boundary to keep out grasshoppers which have caused increasing damage to crops with the passing years. These grasshoppers originate in Bolivia, Paraguay and Brazil. While young they crawl along the ground and it is believed that a fine wire fence would stop them and permit their destruction by acids or flame projectors.

Perennials From Seed

Certainly the most economical way to get a perennial bed established is to plant the seed. This is particularly true where a fairly large number of plants are wanted and also where unusual colors or varieties are desired. Early June is the best time to get started. One is well advised to start most perennials in a special nursery bed, except, perhaps such things as Oriental poppies which are rather difficult to transplant and should be sown where wanted permanently. With the remainder secure seed from a reliable firm. With perennials more than other flowers the seed is very important as there is liable to be a good deal of mixing of old seed with most of the flowers is absolutely no good. Prepare a fine bed in some portion of the garden where there is a good drainage and preferably a little shade in the middle of the day. The seed is sown here in rows about three or four inches apart. With all but the larger seeds, simply press firmly into the earth. Keep the ground free of weeds, well cultivated, and until the seed germinates water with a fine spray every evening. Thin out plants and provide a light protection of leaves or straw the first winter. Next spring transplant to permanent quarters.

Give Them Room

Two of the most common mistakes made by the average gardener are planting the seed too deep and crowding. A safe rule to follow is never to plant deeper than about three times the diameter of the seed, which will mean more pressing into the soil for carrots, lettuce and such vegetables, one to three inches for beans and peas, six to ten inches for gladioli, dahlias and fall bulbs and again mere pressing for such flower seeds as alyssum, calliopsis, poppies and delphiniums. Practically all things sown from seed whether they be vegetables or flowers require some thinning. One should hear in mind the size of the mature plant and allow half as much space as the plant is high. Even quickly used up things such as lettuce, radish and spinach require a little thinning and the same is true for rows of alyssum. Thinning results in sturdier and quicker growing plants.

Members of the Squash Family
Musk and watermelons, squash and cucumbers may be safely planted as soon as the weather and soil warm up. These all prefer open, well-drained ground, and plenty of fertilizer. An old chip pile where some well-rotted manure has been dug in, and which is open to the sun all day, is an ideal location. Plant six seeds to a hill, with hills three feet apart, and later thin to four plants in each hill. Melons must be full ripe before using, but marrows, cucumbers and summer squash are usually consumed when about half grown. This is also the proper time to set out egg plants, and the first of the celery. With all of these tender vegetables, warm-open soil is the ideal location. Continuous cultivation essential, while watering in very dry weather and an application of good commercial fertilizer will be beneficial.

A Treat for Cut Worms
About this time, beans, tomatoes, corn and other vegetable and flower plants start toppling over, and an examination of the stems at the surface of the ground will usually reveal that a cut-worm has been busy. In fact, a little digging around will usually disclose the culprit himself a fat, gray worm about two inches long. This pest can be destroyed by a mixture of bran, syrup, lemons, water and Paris green combined in the proper proportions, and sprinkled preferably in the evening about the base of the plants. The syrup and lemons attract the worm, bran gives the mixture bulk, and Paris green serves as an expensive and quick-acting poison. The following mixture will suffice for one acre: Bran, 4 pounds; Paris green, 1.5 of a pound; cheap syrup, a scant pint; 3/4 of a lemon; and 2-4 gallons of water. The bran and Paris green are mixed dry. The juice of the lemon is squeezed into the water, and the peel and pulp chopped to fine bits and added. The syrup is then dissolved in the water and fruit juice mixture and the liquid stirred into the bran and Paris green thoroughly in order to dampen it evenly. The bait should be spread along the rows of vegetables or scattered over strawberry and other beds where the worms are active.

Kill Weeds by Chemicals

There are now many chemical weed killers on the market, which have proved very successful in wiping out small plots of these pests and for cleaning up driveways and paths. For poison ivy, one application and time during the growing season has been effective, according to Professor J. E. Hovitt, of the Ontario Agricultural College. Other weeds eliminated in this way are ox-eye daisy, blind weed, Canada thistle and most of those things like dandelions which make so many lawns unsightly.

ALBERTA LIVESTOCK POOL LOSES VERY IMPORTANT CASE

Victory for the Banque Canadienne Nationale against the Alberta Livestock Pool in a crucial test case was handed down in Edmonton by Mr. Justice Ewing in a written judgment on Friday morning.

In a lengthy considered judgment the court gave judgment in favor of the Banque Canadienne Nationale against the Canadian Live Stock Association (L.S.A.).

The action arose out of the financial difficulties of the St. Paul Co-Operative Livestock Association, commonly known as "The Pool," stepped in to the breach at the suggestion of the provincial government.

The Pool directors agreed to act as trustees for the St. Paul Co-Operative Livestock Association. The bank, after the passage of a request for resolution by the Pool directors, agreed to grant $4,000 overdraft to the St. Paul Co-Operative Livestock Association, instead of regaining solvency the St. Paul Co-Operative Livestock association went further behind. At the time of the action the bank had a claim for over $12,000 against the St. Paul Co-Operative and the Alberta Livestock Pool.

The Alberta Livestock Pool refused payment, setting up as a defense that it had no powers to act as trustee and that its directors had no authority to borrow money.

The minutes of the board meetings which were produced in court showed that after dealing with the business of the Pool, the directors then took up the business of the St. Paul Co-Operative. They did not formally conclude their session as Pool directors and then resolve themselves into a trustee board for the St. Paul Co-Operative Livestock Association, but entered up their minutes in the Pool books under the heading of "St. Paul Co-Operative Live Stock Association."

THE LAD THAT WENT AWAY

The following is from the Home-makers page in the Toronto Globe: We're growing old, my wife and I. We have a son who went away. Frank, cheerful, brave, He went to face the world. A few years passed, Then he came back. And we were glad; And then we found the world had cheated us!

He was not the lad that went away! And we were sad. We hate you, world, for what you've done! You've changed the lad that was our son. So we are growing old— We sit and conjure up the past. Our hearts are sad.

But God is good, And God can bring to life the dead. And so we hope and pray He may restore to us some day The lad that went away.

CHILD need REGULATING?

CASTORIA WILL DO IT!

When your child needs regulating, remember this: the organs of babies and children are delicate. Little bowels must be gently urged—never forced. That's why Castoria is used by so many doctors and mothers. It is especially made for children's ailments; contains no harsh, harmful drugs, no narcotics. You can safely give it to young infants for colic pains. Yet it is an equally effective regulator for older children. The next time your child has a little cold or fever, or a digestive upset, give him the help of Castoria, the children's own remedy. Genuine Castoria always has the name:

A Note of Optimism

(By Clarence Budington Kelland)

The financial history of North America is nothing more nor less than the story of the fourteen major depressions through which this continent has passed. Each of those depressions as it appeared and developed was dragged about by those who suffered from it as the worst calamity that ever happened. Each one was said to arise from novel causes, now in the world's experience, which society as organized could not cope with. In each case there was hopelessness. In each one, when at its worst, prophets moaned of permanent disaster and a complete break down of civilization.

But thirteen times depressions have been followed by periods of ushering in new eras, presided by unexampled prosperity—periods over by new gods which never would permit the evil spirit of financial calamity to exert again its malignant power.

In the hundred and thirty years since eighteen hundred, we have seen North America spend about one-fourth of its time in financial swamps and morasses; we have seen it spend about one-fourth of its time descending into and ascending from such unpleasant experiences; and we have spent at least a half and probably more than a half of that long time in long stretches of peace and plenty and prosperity. It is safe to say that in four out of five years of the past we have lived in plenty, with business above normal, and with conditions such as we are told we dare never look forward to again.

Off hand, I should say that was a pretty good average. We play the flute three years and pay the piper one year. Our depressions have averaged—something under three years from lip to lip. The reaches of prosperity between have averaged something like nine or ten years. Between each three-year valley, we have had a nine-year hill.

I am afraid financial gentlemen do not read their history, or, if they do read it, they have not the type of intelligence to grasp its meaning. I have come to the conclusion that a financial genius is one who is able to work wonders when no financial genius is required but who is helpless when the qualities he is supposed to possess are needed by a sorely tried world. I am coming to believe that financial geniuses do not guide delicate crafts by skill to glamorous ports but rather ride on rafts utterly at the mercy of wind and wave. So it is high time that not a business man nor a banker nor a financial genius, but a writer of fiction, who is supposed to have no comprehension of such matters, should be called upon to speak his piece, and utter a little common sense, and say a word to calm the passengers. For the officers and the crew seem to have broken out in panic and have been trying to rush the lifeboats.

What I want to say, and with perfect confidence in the truth of what I am going to say, is just this: What has been will be again. What has happened before will happen again. Unless history and human experience tell us there is a rhythmic law of finance which follows its inevitable flow. One happening may be an occurrence, two similar happenings may be coincidence, but fourteen similar happenings constitute a law.

Wise men are telling us what may be done to end the depression. They talk nonsense. They tell us what has ended other depressions, and there they talk nonsense again. No single act or condition ever ended a period of financial grief. Such happenings are merely symptoms. Depressions end when the working of that immutable law, which you call the law of supply and demand, or ebb and flow, or whatever you choose to name it—shall have reached that point in its forward motion which denotes a depression and elevation. And not before, nor later.

Every period of prosperity contains within itself the germs which will destroy it; every period of depression nourishes within it the seeds from which a new prosperity must grow.

I am sick and utterly tired of listening to those men who say this depression differs from all others, and is more terrible than any other, and may be permanent. They are a bit delirious from cramps in the pocket book. They fail to function above the ears.

I, who have less right than any other to speak on financial subjects, assure that they are pitifully, tragically wrong. I, reading the past without jaundiced eye, tell you that in the next hundred and thirty years we will have a dozen or fourteen depressions, with the same number of longer periods of prosperity between. I am telling you that prosperity is just as inevitable as adversity and that we are as sure to have three times as much prosperity in the next hundred years as we have adversity.

I am an optimist. I am foolish enough to believe that for every rogue in the world there are ten decent men. I am so ridiculous as to believe that the world is a swell place in which to live and that the majority of all national laws is that it shall be a swell place in which to live. Even if I were not prejudiced by a certain love and admiration for my country I would tell you that it is not on the decline. I would tell you that it is still on the long, upward climb and that this generation will see us reach the heights. We, and all the world, are on our upward way and nothing can stop us.

And finally, I want to say that all we need is patience. Personally, I do not believe we are going to need so much more of that. But long or short, I want to tell you and impress it upon you so that you cannot fail to believe it that another long stretch of plenty and prosperity lies before us. Each day brings it nearer. It cannot elude us. It is as inevitable as the arrival of dawn after darkness.

PARLIAMENT PROLOGUED WITH USUAL CEREMONY

Ottawa, May 31.—Under a grey sky, but with the usual color and ceremonial which marks the event, the third session of Canada's 17th parliament came to an end at noon today.

Following an eleventh-hour rush Wednesday night in the Commons, when remaining estimates were passed and the decks cleared for prorogation, Chief Justice Anglin in his capacity of deputy to the Governor-General drove in state to the Parliament buildings and delivered the speech which brought the session to an end.

While the viceregal salute of nineteen guns boomed out from Parliament Hill the traveling escort from the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, in dark uniforms and flashing helmets with white plumes, clattered up to the main entrance of the grounds.

Chief Justice Anglin stepped from the closed motor car and received the salute from the guard of honor furnished by the governor-general's Foot Guards. He then proceeded to the Senate chamber.

In the Commons the members were listening to statements by Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, on reparations, when the peremptory three knocks on the door indicated the summons from the Upper Chamber.

Caught in the middle of a sentence, Mr. Cahan hurriedly finished it and sat down.

"This is a form of closure," Hon. Ernest La Pointe, former minister of justice, remarked humorously.

Black Rod made his usual dignified entrance and delivered to Mr. Speaker the message calling for the attendance of the commons in the senate. Led by Mr. Speaker the members who had remained over for the closing proceeded to the senate.

In the Red Chamber the ceremony was brief. Seated on the speaker's throne with the prime minister at his right and the government leader in the Senate at the left, Chief Justice Anglin gave assent to the bills passed recently.

This done, the speech from the Throne was read in both languages. The clerk of the Senate then declared Parliament formally prorogued, and members of the Commons left the Senate chamber.

CHURCH WORK IN ALBERTA KEPT UP

Edmonton, May 27.—Financial difficulty notwithstanding, church work throughout Alberta and the Dominion at large has been maintained remarkably well, it was stated at the Thursday session of the United Church conference in McDougall church by Rev. Dr. Peter Bryce, Toronto, secretary of missionary and maintenance work.

Gifts of the people fell off heavily during the past year, said Dr. Bryce, but for the missionary and budget funds of the Dominion-wide church $2,405,000 was raised, and the United Church stood third among all the denominations in Canada and the United States in respect to per capita gifts.

An allocation of $115,000 was accepted by the conference as the objective for the present year for the "M. and M." work, as compared with $115,000 allocated last year. Of this amount the two strongest presbyteries, Edmonton and Calgary, will take $31,500 each. The fund carries the entire missionary, educational and social service departments of the church.

Rev. Dr. W. M. Grant, Calgary, chairman of the conference committee, presented his report, in which it was pointed out that 99 pastoral charges in the province and five presbyteries had actually increased in their gifts over the previous year. Less satisfactory, however, was the fact that Alberta was still receiving back from the church funds, in the way of grants, two and one-half times as much as it gave.

Several from Winfield attended the Victoria Day dance in Breton and also the dance put on by the school committee Saturday in the new Nor-back school.

The Prosper hall team is putting on a dance in Nequid school June 11th. The Nullic Secundus orchestra will be in attendance. A prize will be given for the best waltzers.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke and daughters, Miss Margaret and Miss Winifred, and Mrs. Dewart, motored to Wetaskiwin Saturday.

Archie Alwood is plowing for B. A. Study at Pendry.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Semchuk and family have rented the house formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ayre. Mr. Semchuk is employed on the section here.

Three Drowned Sunday When Sail Boat Capsizes

Edmonton, May 29.—Plunged into the chilly waters of Lac Ste. Anne when the sailboat in which they were riding capsized off Alberta Beach during a high wind, George Latham, Edmonton School Board engineer, and prominent leader of Labor interests in this city, Sidney Fowler, of this city and Oscar Muerin, Alberta Beach, were drowned, while Russell J. Tyrell, carpenter, also of this city, the fourth member of the party, was saved.

The boat which had been on the water for some time apparently got into difficulties about 1 p.m., and with an unusually heavy wind sweeping across the lake, the boat was unequal to the task of battling the water and capsized.

without much chance to save themselves.

Tyrell was picked up in a delirious condition by a passing motor boat at 2 p.m., two miles from Alberta Beach and a half mile from Rocky Island.

WINFIELD U.F.A.

Winfield U.F.A. held their regular business meeting Saturday, May 28. Several matters of importance were discussed. It was planned to send a delegate to the Federal Constituency Association Convention at Ponoka on June 21st. Mrs. S. Sabin was elected to the executive position left vacant by Mr. Englof's leaving the district. After the business meeting a social time was had with impromptu speeches, games, dancing and lunch.

(intended for last week)

The dance given by the Winfield U.F.A. Saturday night at Drader's mill exceeded the most sanguine expectations as to crowd. In spite of a steady rain falling and the roads being terribly muddy, they turned out in cars, wagons, on foot and horseback—any way they could come and have a good time.

NAMES S. H. CLARK NEW PROVINCIAL GAME GUARDIAN

Edmonton, May 27.—Appointment of S. H. Clark, well-known guide and outfitter, of Entrance, Alta., as Alberta's new chief game guardian, was announced Friday by Hon. Geo. Hoadley, minister of agriculture, in behalf of the government.

Mr. Clark, whose appointment fills the vacancy caused by the death last December of Benjamin Lawton, has taken over his new post. He was selected from a list of about 40 applicants.

SEE CO-OPERATION AS ONLY WAY OUT

Edmonton, May 27.—Co-operation was the only way out of the world's troubles, and in that direction would be found the economics, the politics and the religion that present conditions were urgently calling for. That was the joint argument from different angles, of two addresses at the United Church conference Thursday evening by Premier Brownlee and Rev. Dr. Richard Roberts, noted Toronto preacher.

"The world seems to be broken down all together and all at once," said Dr. Roberts, "and we have not yet quite made up our minds what kind of a world we want when it is mended again."

Official welcomes to the conference delegates were given at a banquet in the McDougall church school room at the supper hour by Mayor Knott and Premier Brownlee.

"The source of the greatest troubles," said Mr. Brownlee, speaking in behalf of the province, "is the selfishness of individuals, and along with the technical problems we are having to deal with must therefore be recognized a fundamental spiritual problem. No ultimate happiness is possible in the world until this selfishness is challenged and fought, and society emerges on an unselfish plane."

An old country periodical states "The Englishman likes his beer and his Bible; the Scotchman likes to keep the Sabbath and everything else; the Irishman does not know what he likes and will not be happy until he gets it; the Welshman likes to pray on his knees on Sunday and on everyone else during the rest of the week."

LIBERAL RALLY POSTPONED TILL END OF SUMMER

Edmonton, May 26.—The provincial Liberal convention, which had been called for June 16, 17 and 18, has been postponed until next October, it was announced here Thursday.

Lateness of spring had made it difficult for many of the delegates to attend a June convention, it was stated, while there was a possibility of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King attending a fall meeting, as he might be touring the west at that time.

An official statement was issued Thursday by Walter S. Campbell, president, and J. Boyd McBride, secretary of the Alberta Provincial Liberal Association.

Therefore the meeting that had been arranged for to take place in the Driford Hotel on Monday, June 6th, to select delegates to attend the convention, has been cancelled for the time being.

CO-OPERATIVE SYSTEMS AS OPERATING IN ALBERTA

A correspondent from Sedgewick has forwarded us a lengthy communication on the manner in which the co-operative systems are working in Alberta, and expresses the opinion that it is a misfortune that the project is so closely allied with the U. F. A., a class group.

In the writer's opinion only such consumers' co-operatives as are based on the Rochdale plan can succeed. Amongst the principles of the Rochdale system are: (1) qualification, a consumer irrespective of occupation, race or creed; (2) one man, one vote, whether he has one or even one thousand shares; buys $1.00 or $1000 worth annually; (3) builds from the individual up, to decentralize control over the lives of the people and place control in the individual himself; (4) it should be allied with no political party, for where so allied a split is inevitable.

Quoting these and other principles, the writer believes that Alberta co-operatives are not based on the same principles. He asserts that (1) the U.F.A. plan restricts its services to U.F.A. members. The U.F.A. is an exclusive organization and being an occupational group, it must remain so, none but farmers may join. (2) The U.F.A. speaks of helping consumers as a whole, and then restricts help to its members. (3) There are those "unfair efforts along political lines" and economic efforts must eventually antagonize all but members. (4) The restriction of business to one class and the opposition to organized retail trade, creates a danger politically to the U.F.A. and also this same restriction in business volume, creates a danger as a mercantile unit. (5) Possibly this unfair business competition to retailers may have had some effect in the results achieved in Red Deer and Athabasca by-elections.

"An extract from the U.F.A. organization committee report of 1932, directed the Central Board thus: 'Central Board to lay down a definite policy governing all branches.' This is absolute centralized control, yet decentralization seems to have been a Rochdale principle. The Central Board apparently aims to unify and control the U.F.A. Co-op. from the top, but the experience of the past is that there must be individual control in order that the individual may learn, through loss or gain, how his business should be managed."

"This province has numerous organizations doing co-operative business, some on a right basis, some on a wrong basis, and all these separate institutions are actually competing with each other for business—overlapping in service and creating excessive overhead costs."

The writer quotes the president of the U.F.A. Co-op. saying: "Co-operation amongst all classes is the sure remedy to cure the disease." And again Mr. Wood urges no restriction when he says: "The true function of each legitimate class in society is to contribute to the general welfare in giving needed and efficient service to the whole."

It must be confessed that the majority of outsiders and the majority are "outsiders" do not as yet, look upon many of the co-operative projects, as anything other than opposite businesses, which may or may not alleviate financial worries for a few, but which seem to make matters worse for established business. Co-operation is an appealing word, which must have some meaning but to the layman, who is not a U.F.A. member, it appears only as another competitive scheme. It is possibly a misfortune both from the standpoint of the U.F.A. and the various Consumers' Cooperatives, that these projects are so closely allied with U.F.A., a class group, which is also a dominant group politically.

They say that if a man really wants his wife to return home, he should write and tell her to prolong her holiday and at the same time get one of the neighbors to write suggesting that she had better come home. Together they will bring her.

MIDDLE AGE

There are certain bodily changes which occur with age. Just as it is true that the child is not a little man, so it is equally true that, at middle age, the body is not the same as it was during the period of youth.

It comes as an unpleasant surprise to many persons when they realize that the years are passing and that they are growing old. The truth is driven home to them, however, when they first appreciate that their body is no longer able to do with ease those things which it used to do readily and without effort.

The infant has to adjust himself to a new environment. The child requires adjustment to school, and the middle-aged, if they are to keep well, must adjust their lives to their changed bodies. There is no definite birthday which ushers us into middle age. It is not the number of years we have lived but rather the actual condition of our bodies which is the index to our real age. It has been truly said that a man is as old as his arteries, and when heart and arteries have undergone the changes associated with middle age, then that person is middle-aged, no matter what his next birthday may be numerically speaking.

To meet these bodily changes and to continue a useful, happy life it is necessary that life, in all its aspects, be moderated. Moderation in all things should be the guiding principle. The middle-aged requires less food and they should eat less. Their exercise should be moderate and regular. There should not be any sudden physical strains, such as a dash for the street-car. Exercise should always stop short of fatigue. The sudden strain and continued overstrain lead to disaster. The older body is not able to meet the sudden or excessive demand, and the penalty paid when this is forgotten is often a severe one.

Throughout life, rest is the healing and rehabilitating power of nature. A night's rest is required at all ages, and as we become older, rest becomes even more essential to health. The middle-aged should make sure of long hours of sleep each night, so that the morning will find them refreshed.

The mental life must also be moderated. Life should not be continued at high pressure but taken in a moderate, easy way. It is sufficient to do every day what time permits; the task can be done deliberately, and tomorrow's work and worries allowed to take care of themselves. If each individual would live with, in his limitations and not demand of his body service which it cannot give readily because of its altered conditions, life would be happier and more useful.

OUTSTANDING WRESTLING AND BOXING BOUTS AT PONOKA

Four outstanding bouts of professional wrestling and boxing are scheduled for the Elks' Hall at Ponoka on June 3, starting at 8:30 p.m. The show will be followed by a dance with Martin's orchestra of Edmonton, supplying the music.

The main wrestling event brings Tom Knutsen, sensational Edmonton light heavyweight, against Loren Buck, of Trail B.C., claimant of the championship of the British Columbia mining and smelting towns.

The boxing is featured by an 8-round clash between Peter Jackson, colored Vancouver crapper, and Harry Larson, husky Briton milt slogger. They will go to a decision or knockout.

In the wrestling semi-final, Dempsey Morris, herculean young Ponoka farmer, who is being sought for Edmonton wrestling shows in the near future, will meet Joe Kudlak of Saskatoon, claimant of northern Saskatchewan grappling honors. Morris will weigh in at 236 pounds, while his opponent will go at 200 pounds even.

The preliminary sends Ed. Boodle of Red Deer, out on the mat against T. Rolstead of Hoffer. Both are rated as the best in their respective sections of the grappling game. All wrestling will be under the sensational Australian rules which have made the heave and hove business a howling success throughout the United States and Canada.

Mika Blinski, who has recently staged a number of successful big shows in Edmonton, is in charge of arrangements.

BASEBALL

Owing to the inclement weather, no baseball games have been played during the past few days but it is announced that the Wetaskiwin Athletics will play at Camrose on Sunday afternoon, while games with Mirror and Bashaw are scheduled to be played here the fore part of the week.

SOFTBALL

The softball game on Thursday evening last, between the Bankers and Orangemen, resulted in a win for the Orangemen, the score being 20-6.

NO MARGIN FOR ERRORS

Because he did not work out a correct course, a court of inquiry has declared that the captain of the Canadian liner, "Prince David," which ran on a reef near Bermuda, is incompetent and is to blame for the accident. Other officers share the blame. The captain may lose his certificate—his "driving license."

One can easily be wise after an event, and it is easy to find cause of blame for an accident at sea. The law of the sea is inhuman, it does not allow a margin for human error. A captain must do exactly the right thing, or he is held guilty.

Perhaps it is right that this should be so. The consequences of an accident at sea may be too terrible to admit of laxity on the part of the man responsible, and for leniency on the part of the men who investigate the affair. Censure must be so severe that it will serve as a warning to others to make sure that the safety of several hundred people and of a ship costing millions of dollars, is as certain as human agency can make it.

There is no room for mistakes at sea. Yet people on land are allowed to drive cars on the highway, they can make mistakes that land their cars in the ditch, or knock somebody down, and a court seldom finds a motor driver to blame.

If the law were as strict, and a driver's license taken away from him after an accident, to the cause of which he had contributed, there would be very few automobile accidents at all.

There were 29 people killed on the Ontario highways in March. There will be many more killed during the motoring months of April to October. But just make the laws of the land as strict as the laws of the sea, and the victims of folly are a fatality any where.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

A judge and a barrister were discussing the doctrine of the transmigration of the souls of men into animals.

"Now," said the judge, "suppose you and I were turned into a horse and an ass, which would you prefer to be?"

"The ass, to be sure!" replied the barrister.

"Why?" asked the judge.

"Because," was the reply, "I have heard of an ass being a judge, but a horse—never."

WEEKLY STOCK MARKET REPORT

The following is a report of the Edmonton Stock Market, as supplied to The Times for the week ending May 31:

Receipts: Cattle, 530; Calves, 137; Hogs 1575; Sheep, 206.

Trading is quite brisk and all offerings of the better grades of butchers are moving readily and salesmen making a good daily clean up on receipts. Buyers are quite keen in their demands; are easier in their grading, and prices generally are showing a firmer tone, especially on light weights. The following are the prices:

Good to choice fed calves selling at $5.00 to $5.50; fair to medium $4.00 to $4.75. The general run of good butcher steers $4.75 to $5.00; and up to $5.25 for choice kinds; mediums $4.25 to $4.50; and common to fair from $3.00 to $4.00, and as low as $2.50 for undesirables. Good handy-weight butcher heifers $4.50 to $4.75; mediums $4.00 to $4.25; good heavies $3.50 to $3.75; and common to fair $2.50 to $3.25. Good to choice butcher cows $3.00 to $3.50; common to medium $2.00 to $2.75; and as low as $1.00 to $2.75; bulls $1.00 to $1.50.

There is no undue activity noticeable on the stock market. Prices generally remain about steady, with stocker steers and heifers quoted generally at $3.00 to $3.50, and as low as $2.50 for undesirables. Stocker cows $2.25 to $2.75.

Calf market drags. Tending lower. Bulk of the good light calves $4.75 to $5.00; mediums $4.25 to $4.50 and common to fair from $3.00 to $4.00.

Hog market firmer. So far this week carloads have sold at $3.35 for the bacon fed and watered, with trucked in at $3.35. Selects bringing a premium of 50c per hundred and butchers discounted 50c per hundred. The cuts on off-grade hogs remain the same and are as follows: Heavies discounted 75c per hundred; extra heavies discounted $1.25 per hundred; No. 1 sows $1.25 per hundred; No. 2 sows $1.75 per hundred; roughs discounted $2.00 per hundred, and stags $2.00 per hundred.

Sheep market showing a weaker undertone. Spring lambs quoted from $3.00 to $3.25, with very few arriving. Last year's lambs from $6.00 to $6.50, yearlings $4.00 to $4.50, and ewes $3.00 to $4.00.

I LIKE DEPRESSION

Henry Anselmy writing in the Amarillo Texas News Globe, has a few genial thoughts on depression that do show glimpses of a silver lining.

No more prosperity for me. I have had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my life. I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was like to eat common everyday food. Fact is, I was getting just a little high hat.

It's great to drop into a store and feel that you can spend an hour or two on three or four a day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting time. I like the depression.

I am getting acquainted with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years.

I never had time to go to church. I played golf all day Sunday and besides I was so darned smart there wasn't a preacher in West Texas who could tell me anything.

Now, I go to church regularly—never miss Sunday.

And if this depression keeps on, will be going to prayer meeting before long.

A canny Scot with a great desire to leave his native Aberdeen and visit London, disliked the thought of paying a railway fare, so he clad himself in female apparel, lipstick and powder puff complete, and turned his high-heeled shoes Londonward along time to go to church. Lorry drivers the world over are susceptible to the female charms and John Wilson, for that was his name, was soon given a lift. By feigning dumbness, the Scot managed to hide his true sex and reached London town. But he carried the joke too far and a botchy picked him up. He is in danger of a jail sentence but every true Scot hopes he is acquitted, if only to uphold the national thrift.

There is no use denying it. I will admit that I am just a bit fleshy. And I wouldn't care if people would just stop reminding me of it. The other day, on a busy street corner, I stepped up to a traffic cop, smiled sweetly upon him, and asked:

"Officer, could you see me across the street?"

He gave me the once over and said: "Madam, I could see you four miles away."

for three years. I am following the Biblical admonition, "Love your neighbors." One of my neighbors has one of the best looking wives I have ever seen. She is a dandy. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them.

Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor, two or three suits at a time. All my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday go to meeting clothes. When I dress up, I am dressed up and I don't mean maybe. I like the depression.

I haven't been out on a party in 18 months. I have lost all my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are falling in love all over again. I am pretty well satisfied with my wife. Think I will keep her, at least until she is forty and then if I feel like I do now, I may trade her for two twenties.

I am feeling better since the depression. I take more exercise. Walk to town and a lot of folks who used to drive Cadillacs are walking with me. I like the depression.

My digestion is better. I haven't been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to.

I am getting real honest to goodness food. Three years ago we had fllet mignon once a week, now we have round steak with flour gravy. Then we had roast breast of guinea hen now we are glad to get sow boston with buttons on it.

The Book of Alberta

As we have been unable to grant the requests from all over the province for our issue of March 4th, which contained the article entitled "The Book of Alberta," notwithstanding the fact that we printed a large number of additional copies of that issue, we have decided to reprint the article. We will have copies of this issue of The Times on hand, and any one desiring extra copies may obtain them at this office.

Chapter I.
1. And it came to pass during the reign of Brownlee, that he called "John," that depression was about in the land and famine stalked among the people; want was on the earth. Some blamed their rulers.
2. And the people in their need gathered together in the city that is called Edmonton and is the capital, and they sent out for the Governor and he that is called John who came and listened to their murmurings and they were greatly perturbed.
3. And for the people made many accusations and much threatening, so much so that John was greatly concerned and he called together his wise men and counsellors, even his cabinet and Henry the Wise who had placed him in authority.
4. And the counsellors and wise men said: "Let us call together the Legislature and with much talk let us pass new legislation and draw the people's attention away from their troubles. Let us blame the tariffs, the war, the Dominion Government and Russia. Let us talk about currency and credit and monopolies. This will please the people."
5. But John was not satisfied and he called his ministers to him severally and asked each one what he had done to strengthen the hands of the Government.
6. And they answered each one for himself, with much fear and trembling.
7. And it came to pass that Hoadley, who is called George, being the oldest, answered first thus: "I have not been a faithful servant. I have not lowered the cost of living to the farmer and consumer. Even to eggs on the table to five cents per dozen. Pork and beef were never so cheap. Have I not taught the farmer to draw the manure spreader with a tractor? And have I not passed an act whereby those mayster sterilize thing enemies so that none come after them. Truly I have been a great success."
8. Then spake up Dick, who is the Minister of many parts: "Master, have I not increased the taxes and the people's burdens fourfold? Have I not borrowed all the money possible and sold many licenses."
9. "Have I not stopped all speculation in Oils? Have I not increased the cost of every service in my department? Truly I have been a great success."
10. Then spake Mac, the road builder: "Have I not built many bridges and much road and improved the highways in order to increase the sale of autos?"
11. "Have I not covered the roads with loose gravel so that horses may not walk thereon? Have I not forced the farmers to go in debt for tractors?"
12. Then spake up Perren, the Baker: "Have I not built schools and spread education until some of the people know too much?"
14. "Have I not caused to be made one thousand teachers without jobs and have I not seven hundred more coming out next summer, and do I not tell funny stories and tease the opposition when they trouble you with their queries? Truly I have been a success."

15. Then spake Vernon, the Smith: "Have I not built telephone lines and raised the cost from $18.00 to $30.00? Have I not caused the farmers to remove their phones so they may not waste their time communing together? Lo, I have builded a line from Camrose to the place that is called Round Hill, a distance of 15 miles, and is it not true there is one phone on the line? Truly I am a success."

16. Then spake Lymburn, who is learned in the law: "Have I not increased the cost of every service in my department? Have I not instituted many investigations at great expense to the people? Have I not worn out one police force and already assisted in passing many Acts? Some even surpassing the Acts of the Apostles? And have we not seven score of resolutions awaiting us now to be passed in the present session? Truly I have been a great success."

17. And the Premier was greatly moved as he listened to his Attorney-General, for he himself was well learned in the law.
18. Then he called on his last advisor and in stern tones said: "Irene, what have you done?"
19. And Irene answered him with a smile: "Have I not been a nurse to your government? Have I not gone about the country pouring oil on the troubled waters, keeping the farmers' wives interested in the work and spreading contentment? I have taught them organization and co-operation. I have spoken at many picnics."

20. "Lo, I have journeyed even unto Europe to intercede for the peace of the world, especially Alberta."
21. And it came to pass that after the Premier, that is called John, heard each of his ministers blow his own trumpet, that he was very wrath.

22. And he called them to him and said: "Behold, thou art a bunch of weak sisters," for he greatly feared the opposition.
23. And now said he: "What are we to do with those who oppose us and bear witness against us?"
24. Then spake up Hoadley, that is called George, and said: "Let us keep strict watch on the Tories, for I know them well. I have slept in their camp. They are bound to destroy us. They are in league with one Bennett who knows politics, and is blessed with great wealth, and his love for us is not great."

25. Then spake up Lymburn and said: "I also fear the Tories. They are after our scalps. They know where we are weak and they shoot straight."
26. "Behold, there is one Howson, called Bill, and he has much ammunition, and is without fear. He has found favor among the people."

27. Then said Irene: "Master, have no fear of the third party. I have talked with them, and I have rubbed

BANK OF MONTREAL REPORTS CONDITION OF MARKED STRENGTH

The semi-annual statement of the Bank of Montreal, as of April 30th, makes a very strong exhibit. The outstanding features are represented by an increase in the holdings of gilt-edged securities, a gain in liquid assets to an amount equal to 57.34 per cent of liabilities to the public—evidence that the bank is in a position to meet any increase in the requirements of its many customers, statement, in easily understandable form, appears elsewhere in this issue and affords an opportunity of obtaining a comprehensive view of the Bank's strong position.

Total assets are reported at $745,612,431, compared with $786,897,706 a year ago. Of this amount, $585,483,225. Included among these liquid assets is cash in vaults and in Central Gold Reserve amounting to $78,491,119, equal to 11.67 per cent of public liabilities.

The most important change in liquid assets is represented by an increase in government and other bonds and debentures to a total of $228,901,146. These are recognized as gilt-edged securities, the greater portion of which mature at early dates. Included among them are Dominion and Provincial government securities of a value of $174,730,246, up from $149,229,626 a year ago. Call loans outside of Canada are $20,562,324 and are secured by bonds, stocks and other negotiable securities of greater value than the loans and represent moneys quickly available without any disturbing effect on conditions in Canada.

Deposits have held up remarkably well under prevailing conditions. Total deposits are reported at $626,701,081.

Total assets of $745,612,431, are available to meet payment of liabilities to the public of $572,310,882, which leaves an excess of assets over these liabilities of $173,301,590.

NATURAL FEEDING

Natural milk is beyond question the best and safest food for the baby. It is the first duty of every mother to nurse her baby. There are very few mothers who are unable to nurse their babies as long as they are willing to do so. The first period of life is a different period for the new baby. He must adjust himself to new surroundings and new conditions while at the same time his body grows very rapidly. During this period, he is entirely dependent for the food he needs and the care he requires upon his mother.

The young mothers will find that there are many women who are not only willing but anxious to give advice. They will tell her that they speak from experience and the young mother will find it difficult to ignore what they have to say. She will be confused by the contradictory advice which they will offer to her. So it is that we warn her against these well-meaning friends and suggest to her that she inform herself from reliable sources and be guided by what she learns from such sources.

Breast milk is best because it is clean, pure and always at the right temperature. It does not have to be prepared and so there is no chance of dirt gaining entrance into it. There are no utensils to be cleaned and sterilized. It is much easier to nurse the baby than to prepare feedings which require constant care to make sure that the feeding will not carry with it some harmful germs. Both time and money are saved by natural feeding, not to mention the mother's peace of mind which is ensured.

The mother's milk is specially suited for her baby. It is of the right consistency, it is readily digested and it contains the food substances which the baby requires. That these statements are correct, is shown by the fact that there is proportionately much less sickness and fewer deaths amongst naturally fed babies as compared with those artificially fed.

One of the most serious diseases which a mother is called upon to make is as to weaning her baby. So often the reasons for weaning are unreasonable or imaginary. The mother fears the baby is not doing well and immediately she jumps to the conclusion that the fault lies in her milk. In almost every case she is wrong. No mother should wean her baby before the regular time, unless after a careful consideration of her case by the doctor, it is found to be necessary, and there will be very few such cases.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

WIESENFORD W.I.

The Wiesenford W.I. held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. J. C. Smith, the quilting bee starting at eleven o'clock in the morning, and the regular meeting taking place when the wool comforter was finished at three o'clock in the afternoon. Plants, seeds and slips were exchanged and a half hour discussion opened by Mrs. Fletcher on "Gardening and our native shrubs," was held.

The secretary was requested to invite the O'Mara U.F.A. and the Tedford U.F.A. to join L. W.I. in sponsoring a Dominion Day picnic for the whole community.

We enjoyed two demonstrations. First, the making of a crocheted wool couch cover, then the cutting and fitting of a spring coat, both being of much interest to the other members.

The next meeting on June 2nd will be held at the home of Mrs. Bench.

The meeting adjourned at 5:30, when tea was served by the hostess.

If the Donkhoppers insist on going nude, in the face of Canadian prejudice, it seems only fair that they should be made to pay for their fun out of their pockets or whatever they use for pockets. Folks in this country strongly object to pay for the cost of jaffing them, especially when they have assets of six million. Seize their property for payment of fines and then they may consent to put on a bathing suit anyway.

As a grandson of the man who buried it, J. J. Alpaugh is directly interested in the discovery of treasure recently unearthed at Bellwood, Ont. So far they have discovered 3,915 pieces of silver valued at $1070. The money was buried between 50 and 70 years ago and Mr. Alpaugh believes that what has been unearthed is only part of the hidden treasure, as his grandfather, after whom he was named, was comparatively wealthy. As the farm has been passed out of the hands of the Alpaugh family, determining the ownership of the money already found is a nice point of law for the Ontario authorities.—Leduc Representative.

"It is not too much to say that any improvement in the revenues of the railways would immediately make itself felt in all channels of trade and that the maintenance of railroad solvency will do more than any other domestic factor to restore strength to the nation's institutions," says an editorial in the Charleston, S. C., Post.

The "career open to merit" in railway affairs is well illustrated in the case of Charles H. Ewing, a railroader for 49 consecutive years, recently promoted president of the Reading Company, in 1883, at the age of 17, Ewing began his railroad career as a runner in the employ of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway, now the Reading Company.

Warmer weather and generally favorable conditions point to normal development of the western wheat crop, according to the report of the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Virtually all of Manitoba's seed is in and Saskatchewan and Alberta seedling will be completed by the end of the third week of May.

Two famous globe-trotters, Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, noted anthropologist, and Bob Davis, New York Sun's world-traveling correspondent, came together at Victoria recently on Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada, the former on his way to Peking and the latter travelling with Mrs. Davis to Honolulu.

Success attending the inaugural cruise of S.S. Princess Charlotte, leaving August 9 from Vancouver, it is announced by E. H. L. Stue, general passenger agent, Canadian Pacific Railway.

Capital, Labor, the learned professions, diplomacy and business were all represented in the passenger list of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Australia on arrival at Quebec recently. The list included Sir Charles Gordon, president of the Bank of Montreal; Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada; F. E. Residents of Maritime Province will have a fine opportunity of visiting Montreal's great Naval and Military Tournament, May 27-29, through a special low rate Canadian Pacific coach excursion leaving Saint John, Fredericton, Woodstock, St. Stephen and St. Andrews May 27. Similar excursions over the same week-end are being operated by the railway from Vermont, and the Sudbury, Ontario, areas. (845)

Hitherto, the owner of a motor car has been responsible for all damages caused while his car was in possession of someone else, but now the court of king's bench has ruled that the fact of loaning a car does not constitute fault. This judgment resulted from an appeal case in Montreal.

THE ROAD TO LITTENESS

Occasionally a merchant decides that he ought to "save" a part of his advertising expense, so he drops his advertising for a time, or reduces his accustomed space.

If he were advised that he could save money by closing his store door for a few days or weeks, or through discharging his clerical force or by moving into quarters half as large, he would scoff such advice. Yet such course would be exactly on par, as a business policy, with that of dropping out of the profession as an advertiser. The merchant who has the courage to increase his advertising when "the pinch" of poor business comes is the merchant who deserves to win—and who does win! He avoids "the road to littleness."—Exchange.

JUST AS GOOD!

Ask Yourself—Is It?

When you ask for a certain line of goods, a line which you have seen advertised in newspapers—and you are told "Here is something just as good and cheaper," it is time to do some thinking. If there is more profit in selling goods not advertised and you are buying at a saving, there must be something wrong somewhere—and usually that is loss of quality—something left out that is THERE in the advertised commodity you originally asked for.

It is well to remember that a manufacturer invests his good dollars in advertising space because he knows his product is right. The fact that he advertises in newspapers so that "he who runs may read" is evidence that he knows his claims are right, and that he is ready to stand behind his merchandise and the stores that sell it.

Bawlf, May 26.—The Lutzer's have branched out in their farming operations and now are turkey-raising on a scale that seems quite large to most of us. Last year they had 15 turkey hens, while this year they have 90. Four large incubators and a number of hens are employed in hatching over 1400 eggs. James Lutzer superintends this line of "farming." Many await with interest the results of the project.

TELL OF NORTH ALBERTA'S OIL POSSIBILITIES

Ottawa, May 27.—Rock formation in the northern section of Alberta indicate possibilities of oil in commercial quantities. This opinion was expressed here Friday before the Royal Society of Canada when a number of geologists described the district of Mountain Park, Peace River, Wainwright and Viking as containing marine sediments. This would indicate, they said, that the district once formed part of the vast ocean that covered what now form the three prairie provinces. The rock formations are about 150,000,000 years old.
